Children's Day is approaching, and the toy cabinets in the shopping mall are crowded with people, all parents bringing their children to buy toys. There is a little boy in front of the counter. Whenever he sees someone buying a car, he runs over immediately, staring intently at the cars running on the counter, his eyes flashing with excitement. How he likes cars!

The auntie salesman asked him, "Who brought you here?"

"Mother."

Seeing that there was no one around him, the aunt asked, "Where is your mother?"

"There!" The child pointed to the medicine counter.

"Mom is buying medicine, so you're here to wait for her, aren't you?"

The boy nodded and looked intently at the car again.

After a while, the boy's mother came and said, "Xiao Bing, let's go home!"

The aunt couldn't help but said to his mother, "The child has been standing here for a long time, so buy him a car!"

"No, I just look at it, don't want my mother to buy it." The boy hurriedly said.

The child's mother sighed and said, "His father is sick all the year round, and his family is not rich. The child loves me and won't let me buy anything for him..."

Listening and listening, the salesperson's aunt's eyes turned red and she said, "What a sensible child! Let's go, I'll buy a car and give him a holiday gift."

"No, thank you, I don't want it." The boy took his mother's hand and walked out of the mall.
